DEATH'S DOINGS.

[illegible]

MCCONNELL.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN MCCONNELL, of East Emporium, have the sympathy of their friends in the death of their little daughter CORRINE, five years of age, Friday Sept. 29th from chronic heart trouble. Never a well child her malady of late became worse and they were compelled to bow to the inevitable. Funeral services were conducted last Saturday by Rev. O. S. Metzler.

Every man owes it to himself and his family to master a trade or profession. Read the display advertisement of the six Morse Schools of Telegraphy, in this issue and learn how easily a young man or lady may learn telegraphy and be assured a position. 24-4m.

Letter to Chas. Rishell.

Emporium, Pa.

Dear Sir: The handsome residence of Oliver Gildersleeve on Main street, Portland, Conn., was painted in 1888 with Devoe and again in 1901.

There's 13 years; there are hundreds of such; the difficulty is to hear of 'em.

Reminds of another. The Farrington residence, Rockland, Maine, was painted Devoe 21 years ago; the paint was in fair condition 5 years ago, when we saw it; don't know any more. Our agents there, Messrs. Farrand, Spear & Co., know. Enclose a stamp, if you write 'em.

Yours truly

F. W. DEVOE & Co.,

Bold Chicken Theaves.

For the past few weaks the people of this neighborhood have been greatly annoyed by chicken thieves, many fine fowls having been taken from different parties. No clue as to who the thieves were could be secured, until Saturday night, about 11 p. m., when Mr. John S. Jordan heard some suspicious noises in the direction of his chicken coop. He quickly sprang from his bed and ran out towards the coop, the culprits seeing Mr. Jordan coming dropped the bag containing the stolen fowls and took to the tall timber. However, Mr. Jordan had time to recognize one of the parties in the person of one Harry Teats, a notorious character of this neighborhood. With him were two small boys about 12 years of age, who were acting under Teats, instructions. Mr. Jordan dressed quickly and hurried to the home of Teats, arriving there some time in advance of him and concealing himself within hearing distance of the house. Teats arrived shortly afterward and Mr. Jordan found who the entire party were. This led to further investigations and some chickens belonging to David Logue, and other residents, were found in Teats' hen park. Teats had been doing a land office business in Driftwood selling the stolen fowls to unsuspecting customers. It is understood that legal steps have been taken to punish this young man, who has only recently escaped the penitentary for attempted rape on a young girl in this neighborhood. It was only through the high respectability of his parents that the case was dropped. S.

Teachers' Institute.

The evening entertainments offer rare oppportunity to the people of Cameron county to hear talent of an exceptionally high order.

Tuesday evening, Elizabeth Garghill Beecher, who is considered by many the finest interpretive reader in the United States will give a recital.

Wednesday evening, Rev. Frank Dixon, the youngest of the famous group of preacher orators, will lecture on the subject, "The Man Against the Mass."

Whereever the name of Colhane, Chase and Weston is known, it stands as a synonym for honest advertising and promises faithfully fulfilled. Making no extravagant claims or false promises, rather contenting themselves with giving the best possible performance and letting that be their chief advertising factor, they now have at the end of their eighth successful season, a reputation that is virtually an absolute guarantee as to the fine quality of the attraction. This organization is certainly not to be classed with some of the "fly by night" companies that one sometimes sees. On the contrary, the Culhane, Chace and Weston Minstrels rests on a firm financial foundation, having a home office at 1368 Broadway, New York City, from where the affairs of the company are directed in a conservative and strictly business-like manner so essential to the success of any enterprise, either theatrical or commercial, thereby giving the amusement loving public the best possible entertainment at the lowest possible price. The splendid ministrel organization will be the attraction at the Opera House next Friday evening, Oct. 6th, and all indications point to an evening's entertainment replete with the best of all that modern ministrelsey affords and certainly well worth going to see. Prices 75c, 50c and 35c; children 25 c.

Almeron Chapman Writes to the Press.

FRIEND MULLIN:—According to my promise, I will give you a short sketch of our trip to Spokane. We left Ridgway on Tuesday, stopping at Warren to purchase through tickets. We caught the Lake Shore Express at Erie, arriving at Chicago 7:30 a. m., where we had to wait until 7:30 p. m., Wednesday, 20th. We arrived at St. Paul 7:20 a. m., leaving there the next morning on the Northern Pacific limited express, for a long and tidious ride of two days and two nights. We landed in Spokane Saturday. "How do you like the town"? Well, if you go out on the outshirts of the city, away from its business centre, it is very rocky and unever, yet there are many handsome homes, beautiful lawns and parks right on the rough and rocky ridges. Then there are basins down in between these rocky ridges, with black rich soil, not a stone in the soil, with gardens of the finest vegetables I ever saw. In the business centre, at night, when lighted by electric lights, it is one of the prettiest sights I ever beheld in any city in the east. Connected by trolley lines with all the neighboring towns, makes it one of the busiest cities of the west. I like the city better than I expected to. It has been cool since we came here. It rained yesterday and I am told that the rainy season begins in October and lasts about two weeks. If this is all, we can stand that. I will close for this time.

A. CHAPMAN,

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 26th, 1905.

P. S.—Our present address:—N0. 245 Sprague Ave.

Goes to Ridgway.

Rev. R. A. Robertson, who for three years has been pastor of the Free Methodist congregation at this place, goes to Ridgway, while Rev. J. Nelson Bennett, of Garry, N. Y., comes to Emportum. Rev. Robertson leaves Emporium with the good will of our citizens, regardless of creed. A conscientious hard working christian, true to his calling, at the same time a liberal minded and companionable gentleman he held a close place in the hearts of our people. Our Ridgway friends can tie to Brother Robertson and their town will be benefitted by having him with them.

Eye Specialist.

Prof. W. H. Budine, the well known Eye Specialist, of Binghamton, N. Y., will be at R. H. Hirsch's jewelry store, Emporium, Pa., October 14th. If you can't see well or have headache don't fail to call and see Prof. Budine, as he guarantees to cure all such cases. Lenses ground and fitted in old frames. Eyes tested and examined free. All work guaranteed.

Enforce the Laws.

William Wykoff, of Cameron, called to see the PRESS on Saturday and pushed the date on his paper ahead two years. Mr. Wykoff likes to hunt and fish occasionally therefore desires that the fish and game laws be enforced. Already we hear of depredations, in some instances we believe the State authorities have been informed. A few good stiff fines will put a stop to the "bird and fish hog."

Another Tailoring Establishment.

J. B. Bedard, the St. Marys Tailor, who has an extensive patronage in this county, has rented the store room next door to Johnson & McNarney's law office and placed the same in charge of H. E. Shaffer, an experienced workman. Mr. Bedard will give the business his attention part of eack week.

Ludlam's Fall Opening.

The Misses Ludlam has moved into their new store room in Mrs. Rockwell's new block and will give their first Opening of Early Fall styles on Friday and Saturday of this week. See their adv. in this issue.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to the friends for there thoughtful sympathy and generous assistance rendered during our late and sad bereavement of son and only child.

MR. AND MRS. J. R. STRAWBRIDGE,

Sterling Run, Pa., Sept. 22, 1905.

A double star attraction in a treble bill is the striking announcement made by Marager Butler of the opera house for Tuesday, Oct. 10. A comic opera entitled "Echoes from Broadway" a high class comedy and an operetta with Miss Eloise Mortimer (well-known by her connection three seasons with the Grau Opera Co., as prima donna soprana,) and Miss Una Clayton, who is equally well known, having starred at the head of her own company for the past five years.

C. J. GOODNOUGH, Secretary.

Mud Slinger Commences.

Boss Hockley has commenced his usual campaign lies and of course selects the editor of the PRESS as the target. Fire away, Prof. His foolish talk in this week's Independent, charging us with being an agent for a bridge company is a lie, made out of whole cloth and we challenge the editor to produce the facts, if he can. At the same time will he inform a tax ridden community why several thousand dollars should be expended at this particular time for a new bridge at Portage, when the present structure will accommodate the few teams passing over that road daily. Again is it not a fact that some of the heaviest tax-payers have personally requested the Commissioners NOT to contract for a new bridge at that point, having reason to believe the Pennsylvania R. R. Co., contemplate vacating that portion of the road and building a new road east of their tracks. With taxes grinding the people why this needless bridge? Echo answers, WHY?

Sanders--Hanes.

MR. EDGAR J. SANDERS and MISS RUBY A. HANES were married Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Auchu, on W. Fourth street, the Rev. O. S. Metzler, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, performing the ceremony. They were attended by Mr and Mrs. Auchu. In festoons of autumn flowers and foliage the parlor was very attractive, the ceremony being performed before an altar of autumn leaves and flowers. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. David C. Hanes, father and mother of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hanes, of Wharton; Mrs. Abt, of Johnstown and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Henry and daughter May, of Emporium. A delightful supper was served, and merry making was freely indulged in 'till a reasonable hour when the company dispersed, wishing the happy couple a prosperous and pleasant life.

It is certainly an unusual treat to see a double starred attraction, but we are promised also on the same night not only a comic opera but a first-class comedy and a high class operetta, enough to satisfy the most exacting. Opera House, Tuesday, Oct. 10.

The Man About Town.

In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree
Where you hear the sweet hum of the bee,
With a gun and a knife
I have owned all my life,
I am waiting and watching for thee,
Revolvers I have two or three,
And an axe that is sharp as can be,
And I'll use all these things
On the first man that sings,
In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree,

A grand banquet to-night at the Warner House by the G. O. P. An old Democrat says the desert will probably be mineral water.

Politics is booming and soon the spellbinder will be heard from the court house steps to the head waters of Hicks Run; from the snake caped summit of Bryan Hill to the scrub oak borders of Sizerville, the glad hand and Pittsburg stogie will meet you from the candidate, but after election it will be the marble face and I don't know you.

I would not die in autumn
When candidates are treating
And buckwheat cakes and sausage
Make mighty healthy eating.

Secret and quick movements were observed one day the past week by one of the delegates to the Free Methodist convention held here. Some boys had a lot of advertising matter in the shape of $1 Green Backs, which at a distance looked quite natural. They stuck one in a crack in the side walk near the church, and when one of the gentlemen passed, he saw it and pick it up, with a look east and west, north and south, he deposited it in his pantaloons pocket with a move that would have made the fly wheel to a carless engine blush.

Uncle Pete Beattie says there is no need of people having bad teeth, although walking around on borrowed time his are as sound as a dollar. He drinks no warm drinks, eats no acids, cleanses them every day and when he goes to bed at night, puts them in a glass of cold water. Peter is a philosopher. He says science is getting too progressive, it is doing everything for a man but pay his debts and keep cigar makers from using corn husks for wrappers. He sighs for the good old days when hog and hominy was the diet and baked beans and Johnny cake made a Thanksgiving dinner. "Oat meal mush, graham gems and pepsin he entirely eschews, but has to eat them when he is tired and cannot defend himself; but when he is called and they hold a post mortem, he don't want the doctors to find an honored citizen filled with bran.

A person walking along the Rialto evenings see many white robed maidens and the scions of the first familiar, with pants creased to their ears and bodies circled with a patent leather circingle, walking arm in arm. The soft music of the phonograph playing in some near by house, floats gently on the breeze and in imagination, he sees the Riveria or the gardens of the vaticans; when he reaches the bridge near Howard's store and gets a whif of the tannery and hears the gentle tingle of the cow bell across the creek, his imagination ends.

Brother Blumle over at his bachanation resort has a Plymoth Rock hen that on Monday was observed picking up stray tacks around the yard. The next day she laid a carpet.

The brown month of October hangs softly over the mountains, along the banks of West Creek, the cottonwood and willow have turned to gold, the dark green of the scrub oak is farther back against the autumn sky and a thousand gorgeous dyes have spread over the dying summer and you can buy bed bug tonic and arnica at Dodson's pharmacy. Old time is our master; soon we will be called to the great beyond, either in person or by proxy and shake hands with those we lent five shillings in the long ago.

MAN ABOUT TOWN.

With "Echoes from Broadway," soon to be seen here, will be two very well known artists, one a celebrated operatic singer Miss Eloise Martimer, and the other a dramatic star, Miss Una Clayton, who had a very evenly balanced company. At Opera House Tuesday Oct 10th.

F. Vernon Hellman, successor to Hurteau & Forbes, makes his bow to the public in this week's PRESS.

The Drowning Crew.

Boss Hockley has at last succeeded in filling his ticket by placing the name of Ralph Hemphill, son of the present Republican Sheriff, at the helm. Of course he only means to use the young man for trading purposes. So desperate have the drowning crew become that they grasp at a straw. The people cannot be fooled and we believe our young friend Hemphill will soon see through the trick to make him pull chestnuts out of the fire for other people. He has always been a straight, reliable Republican, the insinuation of Independent to the contrary, notwithstanding.

Signs in Japan.

Clarence Ludlow Brownell, in his book, "The Heart of Japan," tells amusingly of some signs he saw in Japan on the shops of merchants who were bidding for English and American trade: "Barber to Shave Beard or to Dress Hairs Away." "The Genuinely Bier Buy the Health for Drink," "Of smokes our tobacco is pressure to Our tongue and give the healthiness to Hers and Hes! Also All People by It," "Cowmeat and Pigmeat and Ramune Souda Sasupre Zinsinbiya Jinjyael." This last means lemon soda, sarsaparilla, ginger beer and ginger ale.

Mien of the Mikado.

When the mikado is seen in public he manifests no interest in his subjects, neither smiling nor bowing as he passes along. He sits seemingly passionless, the accentuated type of the Japanese. Indeed, he hardly seems to hear the applause of the crowds. This manner is to some extent perhaps a matter of etiquette, for the mikado must show that he remembers the divinity of his ancestors, who were gods 3,000 years ago.

Strange Rainstorms.

In the Colorado desert there are rainstorms during which not a drop of water touches the earth. The rain can be seen falling from the clouds high above, but when it reaches the hot, dry air beneath the clouds it is entirely absorbed. These strange rainstorms take place in regions where the thermometer often registers 128 degrees in the shade.

London Zoo Gorilla.

Miss Crowther, the largest and fiercest gorilla ever captured, lately arrived at the London zoological gardens. She is five feet six inches in height, measures 42 inches around the chest and possesses great strength. Occasionally she has fit of rage, but usually she is very shy and hides her face from visitors with her hands.

Captain Death.

An English master mariner named Death has had his name changed. He said, in explanation, that he was now acting as first officer, but expected soon to have command of a ship. He was afraid that few passengers would care about risking a voyage in a ship captained by Death.—Kansas City Times.

Too Much Trousers.

In feudal days Japanese courtiers wore wide trousers twice as long as their legs, so that they trailed after the wearer. Belasco introduced them in "The Darling of the Gods," but they so convulsed the managerial audience at the first dress rehearsal that literally he had to "cut them out"—and off

Crown of the Virgin.

The pope has ordered a firm of Florence jewelers to manufacture a crown set with imitation stones for the image of the virgin in the basilica of the vatican, in place of a crown containing gems valued at $7,500,000, which is to be deposited in the vaults of the vatican.

Feminine Comment.

"Here, Maria, here is a story about 36 Buffalo women who cooked on one stove for more than a year and didn't have a single quarrel in all that time."

"What an amiably stupid lot they must have been."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Hard to Down.

When the good man seems to be conquered, the powers of evil have still to rue their shortlived triumph, and to say as Pyrrhus said when he defeated the Romans: "Three such victories would ruin me."—Archdeacon Farrar.

Helping the World.

Make yourself a necessity to the world by what you contribute in the way of personal comfort, by what you are in embodying before men all that is gentle, generous and pure.—M. Dana.

Only a Bluff.

Why does a woman, after making such a solemn promise to obey at the altar, give her husband such a cold and hollow laugh when he merely hints that it would be the proper thing to do?

Old Russ Costumes.

The old local costumes are still worn in many parts of Russia. There is great variety in them, but rich embroidery and an imposing head dress of some sort are common to all.

PROSPERITY CONTINUING.

Industrial and Commercial Interests Furthered by Wise Republican Policies.

Those who keep in touch with the news of the day cannot fail to be impressed with the assurances that come from every side of conditions that indicate a continuation of the prosperity which the country has been enjoying of late. A most powerful factor, says the Troy Times, is the great wheat gathering recently completed, with the prospect of a corn yield seldom surpassed in the national experience. The commercial and financial reports all point to the significance of the statements showing a bountiful harvest, and there is no question that recent announcements have had much to do with the buoyancy which marks nearly every kind of commercial activity.

The New York Financier, a leading journal in its line, takes occasion to point out the facts which form ground for belief in the lasting prosperity of the nation. It alludes to the great grain output and further remarks that not only are the cereal crops large, but hay and other forage supplies are abundant, thus contributing to the material wealth of the country in the promotion of the important dairy industry and other interests. Cotton statistics also indicate a far greater yield than was expected, notwithstanding the attempt to limit production, a circumstance which adds to the natural wealth of the nation. In concluding its review the Financier sums up the matter thus:

"Almost never before in our history has this country been in a more advantageous position politically, financially and commercially than it is this year. The restoration of peace in the orient has been due largely to the interposition of the good offices of our government; for this the lately warring nations appear profoundly grateful, and because of this our country has taken front rank politically, among the powers of the world. Our strict observance of neutrality during the contest has won the enthusiastic commendation of both contestants and contributed to still more firmly cement the ties of friendship which have so long existed. Our marvelous industrial development has placed us in a position where we can successfully compete with European manufacturers in business incident to the repair by Russia, at least, of the ravages of the war and, moreover, the attitude of Russia's chief plenipotentiary, on the conclusion of peace, would seem to indicate that his influence will be actively exerted for the promotion of our industrial and commercial enterprises. Not only in Europe, but in the orient, the field for our activities has been broadened as never before, and the possibilities of trade expansion are of magnitude almost beyond conception. Unexampled prosperity seems now to be clearly within our reach, and that it will be realized appears to be dependent only upon our ability to grasp the opportunity."

At peace with all the world, possessing the sincere respect and friendship of other nations, and turning out products which are more in demand abroad than ever before, what land has so much of promise as the United States? And to this position of unexampled prosperity and influence how much has been contributed through the wise policies of republicanism and the matchless tact and statesmanship of the administration of which President Theodore Roosevelt is the head!

THE FIELD OF POLITICS.

☞A horse named Bryan won a race the other day. So once more it is proved that there is nothing in a name.—Charleston News and Courier.

☞Mr. Bryan declares that the democratic party is not dead. We suppose he will be ready in 1908 to finish the job he began in 1896 and renewed in 1900.—Wilmington (N. C.) Messenger.

☞Mr. Bryan had so good a time on his last journey across the ocean that he proposes to try it again. Mr. Bryan is very popular—abroad, and an amiable gentleman—out of office.—Troy Times.

☞Ohio democrats say they expect a landslide this year. They have one in Ohio whenever there is an election—and it is generally necessary to dig the democrats out.—Chicago Record-Herald.

☞A careful analysis of Mr. Bryan's statement making his position clear, seems to make it clear that Mr. Bryan consistently maintains the position he assumed some nine years ago.—Indianapolis News (Ind.).

☞The New York Sun wastes words in using a column and a quarter to argue for "tariff stability, but no fossilization." Nobody is asking for tariff fossilization. What the producing interests—including American labor—ask is that cranks, reformers and scheming politicians shall not be permitted to play monkey tricks with a tariff that is doing for the country far more good than a "reformed" tariff would be likely to do. Better stand pat for what we know is good than take chances on the sort of patchwork tariff that the "reformers" have always cursed the country with.—American Economist.

☞The presidential statistician does not put Mr. Cleveland entirely out of the game on account of age. But there are other reasons not pertaining to age which bar him.—S. Louis Globe-Democrat.

☞The democratic candidate for governor of Ohio is at least attracting attention by running his campaign on the line of holding down the lid if he is elected. The republicans are beginning to think it may be necessary for them to vote, a fact which wipes out the limit of the majority to be polled against the democrats.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

BOLD BRYAN MESSAGES.

The Perennial Democratic Humbug Gives Forth a Parting Bray.

The last thing before leaving his country for his country's good Mr. Bryan has published in the Commoner an open letter to President Roosevelt, which is probably the most impudent thing he has ever perpetrated, says the Chicago Chronicle.

The subject-matter is the president as a peacemaker and the treatment is a combination of patronage and toadyism. He graciously concedes that the president managed the Russo-Japanese peace conference very well, but proceeds to offset this generous compliment with a criticism of the president's course with reference to the arbitration treaty with European countries which the president negotiated and the senate rejected.

He says the senate "wisely refused to surrender the treaty-making power," which is probably the most offensive thing he could have said to the president. Then he makes a silly recommendation about an international arbitration board which betrays a total ignorance of The Hague conference agreements. All of this is couched in Bryan's inimitable ungrammatical and incoherent phraseology.

Could anything be more disgusting? Ever since the last presidential election, in which Bryan and his followers were buried out of sight by an indignant country, he has pursued the president like a poodle dog, sometimes barking to attract his attention and then licking his boots to cultivate his acquaintance.

Bryan flatters the president with assurances that he is a good democrat. He tries to overwhelm him by assurances that he would even vote for him. He "honors" him with a visit and a "conference" on public affairs. Now he writes him this revolting open letter, praising him, censuring him and counseling him. Could anything be more indecent?

President Roosevelt has never deserved this humiliation and his friends should resent it.

As a perennial democratic humbug Bryan is at liberty to criticise and even to slander the president, but the country will draw the line at jollying, nagging, patronizing and chumminess. If there were any lese-majeste laws in America the perpetration of such offenses as his presidential "messages" would consign him to a felon's cell.

DUAL TARIFF CUTS PRICES.

Home Market Would Be Weakened and Wages Would Go Down.

In the glad days of the Wilson tariff, when the foreigners were not "strangling the American export trade in agricultural products and manufactured goods," our total exports of everything in 1895 were $793,392,599. In the fiscal year of 1905 they were $1,518,561,720!

Our "great basic industry" cannot suffer, says the New York Press, so long as the American people have so much money and are living so well that they take all the farmers offers at the best prices of modern history. If the farmer sells all he raises at top prices it will take the "dual tariff" revisers a long time to convince them that they would be better off selling more abroad at lower prices and less at home at lower prices.

Put American wage earners out of employment and the first thing to go down in price will be our farm products for the first thing the men who are out of work, or on reduced time and wages, will do will be to eat less, wear less and cut down their general living expenses. What the farmer wishes to preserve is his market of good prices—the home market. The "dual tariff" will weaken the home market and lower all prices, commodities and wages alike.

Poachers Would Get In.

A prominent New York business man, writing from Venice, August 24, says: "I can see everywhere I go in Europe that the ambition and desire of the people is to get into our preserves, where they know there is plenty of game. They have shot all the good game in this country, and, like sportsmen, are hunting new shooting grounds. This matter of trade is not unlike shooting privileges; must be protected by law and penalties to keep off the poacher, who, if admitted freely, would soon destroy all that was valuable to us. I wish I could quote language and persons I have seen who talked freely about America. They really fear us more than we realize. It is said freely that we are amassing such great wealth that we menace the old world; that we are building up the greatest market in the world and coming into and sharing the best of the markets of the world. They do not see any way to check us unless by making a trade dicker, so we will give them a share for what, if we keep on, we will soon possess without giving anything in return for."—American Economist.

The small island of Poros is a favorite summer resort of the Athenians. It is famous for its fruit trees, which yield, among other things, 2,500,000 oranges, 800,000 mandarins and 16,000,000 lemons a year.

THE "BIG THREE" IN A COMBINE

THEY PUT MONEY INTO A POOL TO PAY LOBBYISTS TO LOOK AFTER INSURANCE LEGISLATION.

SCHIFF ATTACKS MR. HENDRICKS

He Assails the New York Superintendent of Insurance—He Said Equitable's Finance Committee Was Dominated by by Mr. Hyde.

New York, Sept. 30.—When the legislative committee on the insurance investigation adjourned yesterday until next Wednesday it concluded a week in which greater progress had been made than in any week since the investigation begun.

It was during the afternoon session yesterday when Alfred W. Maine, an associate auditor of the Equitable Life Assurance Society was called to the stand, that it was disclosed that the Equitable Life, the Mutual Life and the New York Life companies had formed a pool to look after legislation before the various state legislatures. Andrew Hamilton, to whom President McCall, of the New York Life, paid several checks the purpose of which the counsel for the committee, Mr. Hughes, has not yet brought to light, was one of the chief members of the legal staff for these companies and was employed and received money for services from the Equitable.

Not the least important development of the day was the appearance on the stand of Jacob H. Schiff, head of the banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. He vigorously defended his attitude while a director of the Equitable society and claimed his firm had acted in a conscientious manner in all its dealings with the society. At the conclusion of his testimony and before the committee could adjourn, Mr. Schiff asked to be allowed to make a statement. He was permitted and he made an impassioned attack on the state superintendent of insurance and statements he had made concerning Kuhn, Loeb & Co. during the investigation of the Equitable.

During his testimony Mr. Schiff made the charge that the minutes of the finance committee regarding a certain meeting were false. He later qualified this, however, by saying if the transaction under consideration, one in Union Pacific preferred, was actually made he did not hear it, though he was present at the meeting. Again during his testimony regarding the power of the finance committee of the Equitable society Mr. Schiff said that the entire committee was at the mercy of one man. "It was all Hyde," said Mr. Schiff, "all Hyde and Alexander."

New York, Sept. 28.—Yesterday's session of the legislative committee to investigate insurance methods was given over to the matter of syndicate transactions of the Equitable Life Assurance Society. Henry R. Winthrop, assistant secretary and financial secretary, was on the witness stand and many of his statements were accompanied by typewritten documents giving the various transactions in detail. It was brought out that in one of these syndicates Senator Depew was a participant to the extent of $100,000 and the senator was requested to appear before the committee.

An astonishing revelation was made when Mr. Winthrop declared that various sums that had been paid to the Equitable, amounting in all to $92,493, had disappeared. There is no record of the final resting place of the money.

BUSINESS BAROMETER.

The Leading Industries Are Assured of Great Activity for Months to Come.

New York, Sept. 30.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Lower temperature stimulates retail trade and fall openings are largely attended, but the weather is not cold enough to menace late crops that are maturing most satisfactorily. Certainty of a successful season on the farms contributes more than any other single factor to the confidence that is felt in all sections of the country. Comparatively little new grain has been marketed thus far, which is largely due to the planting of winter wheat and other preparations for next year that are unusually extensive.

Manufacturing activity is fully maintained, the leading industries having contracts assuring little idle machinery during the balance of the year, and it is probable that more business will be carried over into 1906 than at the opening of any previous year.

Failures this week numbered 250 in the United States, against 223 last year, and 21 in Canada, compared with 18 a year ago.

A Millionaire Suicides.

New York, Sept. 30.—William R. Travers, a millionaire man of leisure, son of the celebrated wit and Wall street operator, William R. Travers, committed suicide Friday by shooting himself through the head in his apartments in Madison avenue. The suicide is inexplicable, Mr. Travers being in the prime of life, in fair health and the possessor of a large fortune.

Uncle Sam's Sales of Land.

Washington, Sept. 30.—Commissioner Richards, of the general land office, has forwarded to the secretary of the interior his annual report covering the fiscal year ending June 30 last. It shows that during the year 16,979,075 acres of the public lands and 77,546 acres of Indian lands were disposed of.

A Shipbuilding Boom.

London, Sept. 30.—Orders for 100,000 tons of shipping have been placed with Clyde builders during the present month, while 44,000 tons of new ships were launched during the same period.

HOW A FRIENDSHIP GREW

The Story

Whether Hand Sapolio got a more enthusiastic welcome in homes where Sapolio was an old and tried friend, or where it was a stranger, is a question. Where women had come to rely on Sapolio for rapid, thorough cleaning in every part of the house except the laundry, they commenced without loss of time, to avail of this new prize. Grubby little hands, and stained, work-worn older ones, whitened, softened, and smoothed out as if by magic, callous spots disappeared, and complexions cleared. Children ceased their strenuous objections to the scrubbing up process, because it became a pleasure. It freshened up the hands after dish-washing, removing the most disagreeable feature of that necessary task. It was found to keep delicate baby skins from chafing better than salve or powder, and the crowning note in the song of delight came when an adult member of the family used it in a full bath, and realized that a Turkish Bath at a cost of one dollar was outdone by a small fraction of the little, ten-cent, velvety cake.

But, strange though it may seem, there were people who had not learned to prize Sapolio. To these the advertising of Hand Sapolio came as a surprise. Sapolio, a scouring soap, adapted for the hands, the face, the general toilet? Impossible, it would be horrid. Who ever heard of such a use? Finally a bold shopper carried home a cake. Does it look like kitchen Sapolio? No one is sure, and a cake of that is bought, and comparison made. Behold a family using both the Sapolios for every conceivable purpose, and comparing notes! After easily and quickly cleansing a greasy pan with Sapolio, Jane thought the other would be gritty, and was astonished at the smooth, dainty lather. Another was certain it would harden the hands and could scarcely realize how soft and "comfy" they felt after the washing.

Then began the excitement of adventure; what would the new soap NOT do? A girl tried a shampoo. Her hair, pretty, soft and silky "went up" perfectly, with none of the unmanageableness that generally exists for a full week after the usual process. A man used the delightful lather for shaving, and felt no need for cold cream. A pimply face was treated daily bathing with the full suds, and promptly became clear. Tartar on the teeth yielded to it, and feet that had a tendency towards hardening of the skin regained their natural condition, till another family had joined the chorus of friendly acclaim. And so it is everywhere, those who know the "elder brother" welcome the new-comer for the sake of the first known, and those who meet both for the first time are plunged into a whimsical worry as to which they could better spare if they had to make a choice.

TRY HAND SAPOLIO.

Its steady use will keep the hands of any busy woman as white, untanned and pretty as if she was under the constant care of a city manicure. It is truly "The Dainty Woman's Friend," in the suburbs or on the farm.

Those ugly dark brown streaks on the neck, arising from tight collars, and the line where the sunburn stops, can be wiped out by the velvety lather of HAND SAPOLIO. It is, indeed, "The Dainty Woman's Friend."

The Erie Railroad has arranged for the immediate expenditure of $225,000 for the installation of the most modern and efficient railway signal that has yet been put on the market. It is known as the Hall Electric Semaphore Normal Clear System, and is operated by stationary storage batteries. The line between Bergen, N. J., and Middletown, a distance of 68 miles, is to be equipped at once. For the first 32 miles, the signals will be but two-thirds of a mile apart; for the rest of the distance, about one and one-third miles apart. It will require five power plants for charging the batteries, which will be located at Rutherford Junction, Ridgewood Junction, Suffern, Oxford and Middletown. The line to be protected has two and four tracks at different places, and is the most congested part of the Erie System. Hitherto a manual block, which is a tower with signals operated by a towerman, has been used as a block protection, but it has been deemed best to install an automatic system for further protection, and to accelerate the movement of trains. The new system will be extended over the entire line in the future.

"GENERAL" FOR 25 CENTS

The picture is ready for framing and will be mailed to any address for twenty-five cents. The "General" was captured by the Andrews' Raiders at Big Shanty (now Kennesaw), Georgia, on the Western & Atlantic Railroad, April 12th, 1862, and was recaptured by Conductor W. A. Fuller, Anthony Murphy and others, near Ringgold, Ga., after an exciting chase of about ninety miles. It was one of the most thrilling exploits of the Civil War. The object of the raid was to burn the bridges on the Western & Atlantic Railroad and cut off the Confederate Army from its base of supplies. JOIN HANDS IN PEACE AND WAR

THE TEXT OF THE NEW ANGLO-JAPANESE TREATY IS MADE PUBLIC FOR FIRST TIME.

WILL CONDUCT WARS TOGETHER

Should Either England or Japan Become Involved in a War, the Other Party Will at Once Come to the Assistance of Its Ally.

London, Sept. 27.—The text of the Anglo-Japanese treaty signed August 12 was issued from the foreign office last evening, together with a dispatch to the British ambassador at St. Petersburg forwarding a copy of the agreement, with instructions to communicate it to the Russian government at the earliest opportunity. The treaty contains eight clauses and a long preamble. The latter states that the object of the treaty is the maintenance of general peace in Asia and India and the preservation of the interests of all the powers in China by insuring the integrity of China and the principle of equal opportunity for the commerce of all nations, the maintenance of the territorial rights of Great Britain and Japan in Eastern Asia and India and the defense of their special interests therein.

The text of the treaty is as follows:

"Article 1—It is agreed that whenever in the opinion either of Great Britain or Japan any of the rights and interests referred to in the preamble to this agreement are in jeopardy, the two governments will communicate with another fully and frankly and will consider in common the measures which should be taken to safeguard those menaced rights or interests.

"Article 2—Should either of the high contracting parties be involved in war in defense of its territorial rights or special interests, the other party will at once come to the assistance of its ally and both parties will conduct a war in common and make peace in mutual agreement with any power or powers involved in such war.

"Article 3—Japan possessing paramount political, military and economic interests in Korea, Great Britain recognizes Japan's right to take such measures for the guidance, control and protection of Korea as she may deem proper to safeguard and advance those interests, providing the measures so taken are not contrary to the principle of equal opportunities for the commerce and industry of all nations.

"Article 4—Great Britain, having a special interest in all that concerns the security of the Indian frontier, Japan recognizes her right to take such measures in the proximity of that frontier as she may find necessary."

AN INSURANCE MERGER.

It Appears to Have Been a Bad Thing for the Policy Holders in 28 Small Companies.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Investigation of the affairs of the Western Life Indemnity Co. by a state examiner yesterday brought to light facts tending to show that claims of perhaps thousands of policy holders in assessment companies have been practically wiped out through company manipulations. Examiner Lucius Frouts discovered that 28 small insurance companies have terminated their existence by merging into the Western Life Indemnity Co.

"That means," said the examiner, "that the policy holders of the original companies have gone through a process which leaves them practically uninsured, although they are still paying their premiums and have been doing so for years. This condition is not particularly the fault of the Western or other absorbing companies, for the absorption is done according to law."

Charges that the company was being "milked dry" were made at the hearing before Judge Kohlsaat by Attorey Levinson for the complaining policy holders.

"The company may transact ordinary business, but the assets may not be used for anything except to pay death claims," ruled Judge Kohlsaat.

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 27.—At a conference of the state board of health and the governor yesterday an ordinance was adopted requiring that all passenger coaches used in the state must be closely screened.

A DESPERATE DUEL.

An Express Messenger and a Former Friend Battled in an Express Car—Both Are Probably Fatally Hurt.

Decatur, Ill., Sept. 28.—John E. Ryan, of Chicago, Pacific express messenger on Wabash passenger train No. 13, and Edward Greene, also of Chicago, a former express messenger, fought with pistols in Ryan's car yesterday. Both were seriously wounded and may die. On arrival here Ryan was taken to the Wabash hospital and Greene to St. Mary's hospital.

Conflicting stories are told by the combatants. Greene says that he got on the express car at Forty-seventh street, Chicago, intending to go to his home at Pittsfield to visit his relatives. He was an old friend and Ryan, Greene claims, permitted him to ride. Greene says he assisted Ryan with the express matter and that they then began drinking. Jokes led to a quarrel and Greene says he and Ryan drew pistols at the same time.

Ryan's story is that he did not see Greene in the car until the train reached Cerro Gordo. Believing that Greene jumped in for the purpose of robbery, Ryan fired at him. According to Ryan they clinched and both of them, with revolvers drawn, rolled about on the car floor. Finally separating, each sought shelter in the car and waited for the other to expose himself. Just as the train was near Decatur, Ryan says, he and Greene fired and both went down, but were on their feet in a short time and the duel continued until the train reached the outskirts of Decatur, when Greene opened a door and jumped from the car. Greene was unable to run and was found an hour later by the police.

Greene has a bullet in the breast and another in the right lung, while a third ball is in the fleshy part of the abdomen. Ryan was shot in the left jaw, in the left ear and in the left shoulder.

Draws the Color Line.

Baltimore, Sept. 29.—At the democratic state convention which was held in Ford's opera house, this city, Thursday, Comptroller of State Gordon T. Atkinson was renominated and a platform adopted which, excepting a paragraph endorsing the excellent business administration of the present democratic governor, Edwin Warfield, is wholly devoted to the advocacy of the proposed constitutional amendment to restrict negro suffrage which will be voted upon at the November election.

A Battle Between Students.

New York, Sept. 29.—Sophomores and freshmen of Columbia university waged a fierce battle at the Bronx casino last night on the occasion of the sophomore smoker, at which captive freshmen were forced to furnish the entertainment. When a list of the casualties had been completed it was found that the most seriously injured was a sophomore named Beck, who had three ribs broken.

A Famous Lawyer Dies.

New York, Sept. 28.—Wheeler H. Peckham, the noted lawyer, died suddenly here yesterday in his office. Apoplexy is thought to have caused his death. Mr. Peckham was 73 years old. He was appointed federal district attorney of New York in 1884 and in 1894 was appointed to the federal supreme court by President Cleveland. The senate refused to confirm his nomination.

Smallest State Is Blotted Out.

Brussels, Sept. 28.—An agreement has been reached between the Belgian and Prussian governments for the cession to Belgium of the neutral territory of Moresnet in exchange for a strip of land adjoining the town of Eupen, in Prussia, 11 miles from Aix-la-Chapelle and close to the Belgian frontier. Thus the smallest European state has been blotted out.

Avenged His Sister's Wrongs.

NOW IS THE TIME TO PAINT.

Important Memorandum.—The painter is the most important factor in painting. A job complete, done by a good painter, with the best quality of paint, coming say $50.00 ($40.00 labor, $20.00 paint), will last five years. The same paint applied by a dauber ($40.00 labor, $20.00 paint), will last only two years. Thus the "per-year-cost" of the good painter's job is $12.00—the poor painter's, $20.00.

Above all, USE GOOD PAINT!

The oil! linseed oil! Just pure linseed is the "life"—the one great requisite of good paint for which there is no substitute—and the sure way to get the pure, fresh linseed oil is to buy the oil and separately. For every gallon of Kinloch Paint buy one gallon of linseed oil. This makes two gallons of paint, ready for use. You then know that the paint you're putting on your house is alive—"the genuine oil is in it," and paint is not paint unless it contains 50% of really pure oil. We will further explain the virtues of Kinloch Paint if you will call and see us.

Kinloch PREPARED READY MIXED HOUSE PAINT

Where the Presidet Stands.

The chief of the Gordon newspaper "dares to put" on the side of the City Party the President of the United States and with him "the great Cabinet officer" who lately spoke of a "corrupt and criminal combination masquerading under the name of Republicans"

As for the Cabinet officer, Mr. Root, who is referred to, was not a member of the President's official family when, as a lawyer and paid a lawyer's fee, he wrote a political document founded, not upon any facts of which he was personally possessed, but upon points furnished him by James Gay Gordon, his real employer, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. He made no investigation, but something was required from him, and that something was a political expression which might be used in a political campaign.

No doubt Mr. Root is personally opposed to corruption.

So is the President of the United States.

So is every respectable citizen of Philadelphia and of Pennsylvania.

No right-minded man would espouse the cause of a boodler or grafter.

No one would stand in the way of a most careful inquiry into any possible charge of civic crime.

But there is a very great difference between charges of criminality against individuals, no matter whether they "masquerade as Republicans" or not, and the Republican party itself.

That distinction is readily recognized by the President of the United States, who has given us a practical example of how to secure lasting reforms.

He has been investigating three departments of the government—those of the Postoffice, of Agriculture and of the Interior—but never once has he been found inviting help from Democrats and outsiders.

He has never joined the foes of Republicanism.

Reform within the party is what he has carried into actual practice.

In the Presidential campaign of last year we has very much the same situation that presents itself in Philadelphia just now.

Charges had been made against certain Republican officials and contractors for government supplies.

The Democratic newspapers were filled with these charges.

Judge Parker, from the platforms upon which he spoke, detailed them at length and called upon the people to defeat the Republican Party.

He and his orators tried to convince the people that because of these charges against individuals the whole Republican Party was corrupt, and that no reform could be expected unless the party was overwhelmed at the polls.

Against this false logic President Roosevelt and his supporters made response that the Republican Party was an organization of principle, that it could not be held responsible for the acts of individuals, that it was big enough to do its own housecleaning.

That issue went directly to the voters, and they supported the position of the President.

It is not at all likely, therefore, that the President would be found on the side of the City Party in Philadelphia when that organization is doing its best to defeat the Republican Party of Pennsylvania. The Republican Party of Pennsylvania is a grand collection of responsible and free citizens. It is not to be held up to scorn because of charges against a few contractors in Philadelphia. It is quite big enough to do its own reforming.

And the local ticket that it has put up, composed, as it is, of Republicans whose integrity cannot be assailed, is evidence that it is perfectly ready to do all the reforming that may be required.

MR. AND MRS. J. A. MCCONNELL.

An attraction far beyond the ordinary comes to the opera house soon, which will offer instead of the stereotyped three act play, a comic opera, a comedy of the most amusing nature and an operetta that is said to be a laugh from start to finish. The company is said to be evenly balanced and composed of several artists of note; is headed by Miss Eloise Mortimer and Miss Una Clayton, both of whom have been here on other occasions. Miss Mortimer as prima donna soprano with the Grau Opera Company and Miss Clayton as star of her own company. Opera House, Tuesday, Oct. 10.

When a man won't give his wife any money, nor pay the preacher, nor contribute a cent to build up his town or county, some people call him a hog, but this is a slander—slander against the hog. The hog does pay. He pays the doctor, the preacher, printer, the storekeeper; builds a new house for the wife; buys organs, pianos, buggies; and sends the children away to school Don't ever again compare a mean, stingy man to a hog.—Kansas Paper.

UNINTERESTING PEOPLE.

They live in a quiet sort of way,
  In a quiet sort of a street;
They don't meet a great many people, nor Impress the people they meet.
The newspapers never mention their names;
  The world doesn't care what they do.
They never go in for anything much,
  And their intimate friends are few.

He never has had a favorite club,
  Though somebody said he might,
For a fat little nose on the window pane
  Awaits him every night;
And eight little fingers and two little thumbs
  Undo all the work of the comb,
As he sits in the quietest sort of a way
  In his quietest sort of a home.

She doesn't belong to a woman's club,
  She hasn't a single fad.
She spends her time with a blue-eyed lass
  And a mischievous little lad.
She never unraveled a Problem of Life;
  She doesn't know lots of things;
She plays with the "kids" and works all day,
  And most of the time she sings.

He isn't like most other husbands at all,
  She isn't like most other wives;
And they never attempt to make a change
  In the course of their quiet lives;
But once in a while they dress the "kids"
  And go to spend the day
In a nice little country spot,
  In a nice little quiet way.
—Maurice Brown Kirby, in Collier's Weekly.

A ROSE OF NORMANDY

By WILLIAM R. A. WILSON

Renee then opened her heart to her companion, and the iron-gray head of the doughty warrior was bent in wondering interest at the recital of the perils of the girl, the depth of a woman's love, the wound a feminine heart can suffer and yet live, and the strength of purpose of a noble nature that has resolved to conquer, even though it be by flight. She told of the Comte de Miron, of his duel with Tonti, of her adventure in the chair, of her love she felt to be returned, of the appearance of the comte in Quebec. As regards Tonti she contented herself with saying that she had learned that she was mistaken in her estimate of the man, that he was all unworthy of her love, and that, in short, she had ceased to love him. Her reticence as to the cause of her change of feeling, the vehemence with which she expressed her dislike, and the evidences of mingled shame and hurt pride in her tone, caused Frontenac to smile indulgently. He listened patiently until the end and then dismissed her, saying in a soothing tone: "I will consider the matter ma chere, and if I can find no other remedy, believe me I shall not stand in your way of escape from this rascal, but shall aid you all in my power."

Renee thanked him and arose to go. As she passed through the anteroom she was startled at finding Tonti standing by the window, evidently awaiting an opportunity to see the comte. He, too, was surprised at beholding her, and bowed low as she passed, muttering some commonplace greeting. She, however, neither noticed his bow, his words, nor himself, but with eyes fixed in front of her, passed rapidly through the door with an air of haughty pride and disdain that would have done credit to mademoiselle herself, and was gone.

Frontenac saw this by-play and laughed at the rueful countenance with which Tonti greeted him.

"There seems to be some mistake," he said. "You apparently think you know the fair donnee, while she believes differently. Ah! you knave, trying your fascinations on every pretty woman you meet!"

"Pardon, M. le Comte," replied Tonti, stiffly, "but I knew the young lady before leaving France, hence my salutation. She probably did not see me."

"Very likely," responded Frontenac, dryly. "Since you know her so well she will probably tell you how it happens she is here and all about herself. It will save me the trouble."

Tonti grasped him by the wrist nervously. "Come," he said, "you are my friend. Tell me when and why did she leave France?"

Frontenac, seeing the young man's earnestness, good-naturedly told him him of the arrival of his charge.

"She has fled from Louis," murmured Tonti. "But why this garb of a religieuse?"

"To escape the attentions of a worthless adventurer who came in the same ship. She wished to become a nun, but I was not willing to allow that."

"Wished to become a nun!" exclaimed Tonti, in astonishment. "How can that be? She loves La Salle, and he is devoted——"

"Loves La Salle!" laughed Frontenac long and loudly. "Ho! ho! my friend, I happen to know better than that."

Tonti's face flushed angrily. He took a step forward, crying, "You know? What can you know—unless, par Dieu! you are wooing her and intend to marry her yourself?"

Frontenac fairly choked with merriment at these rueful words. When he was able to speak again he said:

"Mordi! one at a time! Do I want both ears boxed? But come, my warlike friend, sit down and evaporate your wrath."

Tonti took several strides up and down the room, then turning to his companion, exclaimed:

"Pardon, mon ami, but I am distracted and know not what I say. Hear me, and decide if I have not reason for my madness. I meet a beautiful woman in Paris. I worship and adore her. She is friendly. I leave France; and my comrade, he whom I have sworn to aid and defend, confides to my honor a mighty secret, tells me that he loves the same woman, and that he has every reason to believe that he can win her. Two years later I approach a besieged seigniory in the wilderness and find her, the woman I love and whom I left across the seas, as the defender of the post. I meet her here; she will not even recognize me. You talk of her and tell me she desires the convent and the veil. Mon Dieu! what am I to believe?"

"You have never told me of your love?" asked the comte in return.

"I could hardly do so after my friend and companion had honored me with his confidence, little dreaming of my own feelings toward her," replied Tonti, proudly.

Frontenac watched the young man musingly. "One can never know a woman's mind. If Madame Bizard were here——"

"Madame Bizard?" cried Tonti. "She has never known her?"

"Certainement! It was to her charge that I confided the girl when she first came."

"Misericorde!" ejaculated Tonti. He then related to the governor the details of the attempt to entrap him through the agency of that woman before he had left Quebec.

Frontenac opened his eyes and whistled softly. "She then has reason to dislike you. She offered to become your dishonoroble friend; you repulsed her, she accordingly became your dishonored enemy. I see," he muttered to himself after a moment's thought.

"See what?" exclaimed Tonti.

"Nothing," was the mysterious reply, "except the sunlight advancing along the floor, which reminds me that time passes. Perhaps I may find a solution to your riddle some day."

After Tonti had left the room Frontenac sat awhile buried in thought. At length his brow cleared, his lips parted in a smile, and he laughed at some idea that occurred to him. He evidently relished his little joke, for the next week the mere sight of Tonti or Renee in the distance was sufficient to set his sides a-shaking. The savor of his jest was so enjoyable that it kept him in excellent humor at the next council meeting, so that for the first time since the arrival of Duchesneau there was absolutely no friction. His merriment even followed him into sleep, and he found himself awaking with a laugh on more than one occasion.

"I HAVE DONE THE BEST I COULD."

He sent for Renee one day, and, taking her hand in his great palm, said kindly: "Ma chere, I have been considering the request you made me, and am persuaded that you are right. I believe indeed it is for your best happiness that you should go. I will send you to Montreal with the nun that accompanies you, there to await the arrival of the rest of the expedition that I am dispatching to the relief of La Salle, and which will be large enough to protect you. Then," he added with a twinkle in his eye, "I know you will not find in the woods another rascal as base as you believe M. Tonti to be."

To Tonti he said in farewell:

"I have been thinking over your predicament of mind, and can give you no solution now. Time will determine all things and set matters right. Now banish all thoughts of love, and back with all speed to your comrades. I have made arrangements for the most important load of all to be shipped from Montreal. When you arrive there you will receive it. Guard it with your very life, and convey it in your own canoe, as it will prove indeed to be a treasure for La Salle."

He watched Tonti's figure grow smaller and smaller in the distance, and finally turned away with a sigh and the enigmatical remark, "I have done the best I could. If they do not find themselves, it will not be my fault."

As they paddled up the stream on the return voyage, the men kept time to an old chanson that they sang lustily. Tonti did not join in the song. His mind and heart were filled with a strange perplexity. He had been unable to see Renee again during his stay in Quebec, and rumors had reached him that she had left again for some distant point on an errand of mercy. Her refusal to recognize him still rankled in his heart. He knew not what he could have done to merit her disapproval. He had intended speaking to her of La Salle and telling her of his bravery and determination, thinking that she would be content to talk to him, and thus, although it were to discuss the excellencies of his rival, he would find a certain sweet satisfaction in being with her. Then, too, what would his comrade think when he told him that he had seen her, and yet brought no message from her? A feeling of weariness passed over him, that weariness of living that comes at times to every man, as the result of baffled endeavor or hope deferred, that clogging effect of our imperfect human nature upon the ever-buoyant spiritual. But the thought of the patient, steadfast heart awaiting him, that wavered not nor faltered, although surrounded on every hand by foes open and secret, by the giant obstacles of nature, and the checks of chance and circumstance, quickened Tonti's fortitude and purpose, until his paddle cleft the water and tossed its glistening spray as gallantly as any voyageur.

Renee waited at Montreal the arrival of the party with a feeling of relief and happiness. The voyage from Quebec had been made without discomfort, and as long as the leagues were left behind her spirits had risen, and she had given herself up to the enjoyment of the healthful, vigorous life about her. At length it was announced that the fleet had arrived, and her escort was in waiting. She thereupon repaired with her companion to the river-side to embark, with a light heart, full of hope for the long journey before her. Upon nearing the designated place she caught the glint from the paddles of a group of canoes that had already started, and saw the one remaining craft that awaited their arrival. On reaching the landing, she beheld the leader engaged in conversation with one of the fur-traders. He turned toward her, and she recognized in him the man from whom she had fled. She saw him start and flush, as though with feigned surprise. She stood rooted to the spot in astonishment and anger. How he could have learned of her proposed expedition she could not comprehend, as she had taken great care at Quebec that her destination should not be known; no one but the superior and Frontenac knew, and she did not believe that either of these would betray her. The presumption of the man who, knowing her aversion to him, had forced his society upon her was insufferable. But nothing could be done now. The remainder of the canoes had already departed and there was no escape, so summoning to her aid all the pride of a race that for generations had conquered or suffered, as the case might be through their haughtiness, she disregarded the doffed cap and proffered arm, and took her appointed seat without a word.

CHAPTER XIX.

IN WHICH THE PERILS OF THE DEEP ARE MET, AND POMPON CLIMBS A TREE.

Through the long sunny days, past cape and river-mouth, flower-fringed bank and wooded islands, the expedition hurried on without let or hindrance from human foe or Nature's adverse whim. Renee contented herself with conversing in low tones with her companion, whilst Tonti from his position in the bow neither spoke nor turned his head. On landing he superintended carefully the erection of the bark hut that sheltered the women for the night and made all ready for their occupancy. Their meals were cooked and served as daintily as the rude means available would allow, the Mohegan hunter in some mysterious manner always providing fresh fowl or fish or tender bird to tempt their appetite. To him and to Pompon who served them Renee was all graciousness; but Tonti, who cared for every detail and who, unknown to them, slept before their door each night, received no thanks. He did not attempt to force himself upon them, maintaining always a respectful distance and a demeanor full of deferential courtesy. Delightful as these attentions would have been from the Tonti she had first known, they became under the circumstances anything but agreeable, almost unbearable; for it seemed to Renee that, perceiving, as he must, her repugnance for him, he was choosing the most successful way to torture her and render her miserable. And so the bitterness in her heart for the man she had once loved increased.

At length the distant glimpse of the walls of Fort Frontenac was hailed with delight as being the end of the first stage of their long pilgrimage. They landed amid the welcome of guns and shouts of men. Tonti provided the commanding officer's house for the use of Renee and the nun, and detailed one of the mission girls to wait upon them. A slight delay was necessary here in order to transfer the contents of the canoes to a small 20-ton vessel that was placed at the disposal of Tonti. With this the men were to sail directly across the lake to the Niagara river and haul the goods to the fort before Tonti reached it. This would save some time. He preferred to coast along the southern shore of the lake with his party in their canoe, a procedure less dangerous as well as one of greater comfort for his passengers. While these matters were being arranged, Renee and the nun wandered about the Indian settlement near the fort, viewing their mode of living with much interest, as this was the first glimpse of an Indian camp that they had ever had. They were received with kindness, and sought to relieve the sufferings of two or three of the old men of the tribe who were bedridden.

One day Renee had allowed the nun to return to the fort ahead of her and was sauntering along the edge of the lake. She finally stopped at a point overlooking the water and stood gazing at the scene spread out before her. The distant buildings of the fort and the curling smoke from the fires of the Indian encampment were the only signs of human habitation visible. Behind her, a few yards distant, was the dark green of the primeval forest, while in front on one side stretched the watery wastes of a great sea. Her thoughts passed over the restless surface of another greater sea to the land of her birth, and a feeling of loneliness came over her as she realized her isolated position, and she wondered at the strange vicissitudes of the life that le bon Dieu had led her through. The recollection of that bright day at Choisy came to her afresh, when in her girlish eagerness she had penned the words of the song she had sung; penned them to the throbbing of a heart newly awakened to the first tender thrills of a strange, new passion that seemed to satisfy all the yearnings of her nature and made all things new. "Until he comes," she murmured in a saddened, dreamy retrospect. Ah! why had he not come—or rather, why had he who had come not proved worthy? Was love, then, all a dream; were no men deserving; was there not one who would merit all that rich store of heart and mind that she felt was hers to give? Would he come to her in this vast wilderness? Ah! when and who?

"I am come," spoke a familiar voice in a hesitating tone, and then stopped.

She wheeled quickly about and saw Tonti standing a few paces behind her. She had been so busied with her own thoughts that she had not heard him break through the cover of the wood and approach. On his back was a huge load of small balsam boughs that he had cut. He threw them down beside him, and, removing his cap, continued:

"Pardon me, mademoiselle, if I have frightened you. I have been gathering fresh material for your bed hard by. I fear you have rested ill on the solid matted mass you found already there."

Renee's eyes blazed. "Do you not know, monsieur, that your attentions are distasteful to me, that I would rather sleep upon the bare ground than upon a downy couch that you had prepared?" she said.

Tonti was startled at her heat, and his cheek reddened. He answered, however, in a calm voice:

"I am come, as I was about to tell you, to thank you for a service rendered me, and to ask you to hearken to the few words I have to say. Will you not listen to me?"

"I can hardly choose but hear," was the disdainful reply, "since you are standing in the only path by which I can escape."

The young man stepped to one side, leaving the way open, and said with a serious haughtiness in his voice: "I do not wish to detain you against your will. 'Twas but a simple civil request I made, and one that I felt I had a right to expect would be granted."

Again Renee broke forth:

"Right! What rights have you over me that I am bound to respect?" Then feeling herself the ungraciousness of her speech, she continued more quietly: "Go on; I will listen."

"I wish to thank you, then," began Tonti, "for your assistance in my escape from Paris. It was admirably planned and all the arrangements were perfect. I feel I owe it to you that I was not detained in France as the result of the unfortunate ending of my duel with the Comte de Miron."

Wit of an Australian Bishop.

A certain bishop, happily still with us, though retired from the cares of his colonial diocese, was famous throughout Australia no less for his quaint conceits than for his spiritual vigor and eloquence. When one of the clergy described a wealthy parishioner as a careless, indifferent sort of a man, who cared only for his garden during the day and his billiard room at night, he said: "Garden! Billiards! Don't call him careless; he evidently minds his peas and cues." To the rude question of a dissipated passenger board ship, "Why do you wear that thing?" (a cross,) he replied: "For the same reason that you wear a red nose—as a mark of my occupation."—Strand Magazine.

Wandering Wag.

In a good many western states where one railroad has gobbled up most of the available right-of-way land in the immediate vicinity of a town, the railroads subsequently building thither have to build their stations at the nearest available point to the place. An instance of this is found at the town of Oswego, Kan. The other day a traveling post office inspector from Philadelphia was getting off of a Frisco train at that place. When he had driven a mile or so from the station, and was beginning to get into the straggling suburbs of a village, he called out to the driver of the 'bus: "Say driver, is this the nearest town to that station where I got off?"—Baltimore American.

Clear as Mud.

Mrs. Chugwater—Josiah, what is the meaning of the word "equinox?"

Mr. Chugwater—It comes from "equus," horse, and "noxious," bad. Bad for horses. Will you never learn to use your own mind?"—Chicago Tribune.

Meant Him.

Bess—I really thing May is in love with you.

Jack—Really? Why?

"I heard her remark yesterday that homeliness in a man is not really a drawback, but a sign of character."—Philadelphia Press.

Mrs. Youngish—Oh, Bob, what shall I do? Baby is crying because I won't let him pull all the fur off my new muff.

Mr. Youngish—Well, that's all right. Give him the cat!—Smith's Weekly.

Miss Grace Barstow, of San Francisco, is the only woman violin-maker in the United States, and probably in the world. Moreover, she is a fine performer on the instruments of her own making. She is experimenting with native redwood as a base bar.

A famous Adirondack guide, in the days when the mountain region was a true wilderness, has just died at the age of 95. William McLaughlin was in the Adirondacks when there were none but old Indian trails, and he and St. Regis Indians cut new ones as the region began to be visited.

Green McCurtain, governor of the Choctaw nation, will take his place among the millionaires ere long. He settled up the affairs of the tribe recently, involving the sale of coal lands worth $40,000,000. Of this purchase price Gov. McCurtain will receive ten per cent. as commission, or $4,000,000.

Mrs. W. S. Pratt, of Atlanta, Ga., is said to be the only woman south of Chicago in the lumber trade. When the firm by whom she was employed went out of business without losing a day hunting a position she opened an office and began operations. To-day she is head of a firm handling 100 cars of lumber monthly.

Henniker Heaton, who has done so much for the cheapening of postal communication in Great Britain, urges the formation of a league to make the penny post universal. It is, he says, absurd to charge twopence-halfpenny for a letter to Calais or to New York, when a letter to Canada can pass through New York for a penny.

Mr. Edison has but one speech to his credit. He was to lecture on electricity before a girls' seminary, and was to be assisted by a friend named Adams to work the apparatus. He was so dazed when he arose that he simply said: "Ladies, Mr. Adams will now address you on electricity, and I will demonstrate what he has to say with the apparatus."

EDUCATIONAL ITEMS.

The income of Oxford university is slightly under $350,000 a year.

Swimming is part of the curriculum of the public schools of Yarmouth, England. The boys are taken to the shore in parties and are trained till they can swim 50 yards in the sea.

The imperial decree regarding the appropriation of temples for schools, says the Shanghai North China Herald, is being carried out in Anhui. At Luchoufu, four very large images, servants to the god of literature, have been torn down to make room for little Chinese boys to study English.

The arrival of many Hindoos from India to enter as students at the Imperial university and schools of technology at Tokio has been noted lately. It was intended to celebrate the festival of the great Indian national hero, Sivaji, at Tokio this year for the first time with great eclat.

In the coming autumn the schools of France are to experiment on an extensive scale with a system of teaching history by dolls dressed to represent various periods and characters. A successful exhibition of the method in Paris convinced educators that there was merit in the plan. The puppets are made to move, by means of silken cords handled from above, on a miniature stage. The dolls represent important scenes in the history of the country.

Wireless in New Zealand.

The New Zealand postmaster general hopes, with the cooperation of Australia, to have wireless telegraphy established across the Tasman sea within 12 months. The cost will be £28,000.

CHRONIC ERYSIPELAS

Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, Although Whole Body was Affected.

Erysipelas or St. Anthony's fire is a most uncomfortable disease on account of the burning, the pain and the disfigurement; it is also a very grave disorder, attended always by the danger of involving vital organs in its spread.

The case which follows will be read with great interest by all sufferers as it affected the whole body, and refused to yield to the remedies prescribed by the physician employed. Mrs. Ida A. Colbath, who was the victim of the attack, residing at No. 19 Winter street, Newburyport, Mass., says:

"In June of 1903 I was taken ill with what at first appeared to be a fever. I sent for a physician who pronounced my disease chronic erysipelas and said it would be a long time before I got well.

"Inflammation began on my face and spread all over my body. My eyes were swollen and seemed bulging out of their sockets. I was in a terrible plight and suffered the most intense pain throughout my body. The doctor said my case was a very severe one. Under his treatment, however, the inflammation did not diminish and the pains which shot through my body increased in severity. After being two months under his care, without any improvement, I dismissed him.

"Shortly after this, on the advice of a friend, I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, two at a dose three times a day. After the second box had been used I was surprised to notice that the inflammation was going down and that the pains which used to cause me so much agony had disappeared. After using six boxes of the pills I was up and around the house attending to my household duties, as well as ever."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or may be obtained direct from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y.

ABOUT MATHEMATICS

THEIR DISCIPLINARY VALUE VERY CONSIDERABLE AND GIRLS SHOULD NOT NEGLECT THE STUDY.

Most School Girls Dislike Algebra—Mathematics a Fine Disciplinarian—It Helps One Acquire Perseverance, Moral Courage and Self-Control—Education Is Built on the Alphabet, the Multiplication Table and the Ten Commandments.

BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

(Copyright, 1905, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

I don't blame you much, Dorothy, for your great dislike of mathematics. I have never particularly enjoyed studying them for my own part, and I have always looked with respectful wonder and almost awe on other people who have professed to find them delightful.

Yet, my dear, the girl next you in the class may approach this subject in a quite different mood from yours. She may fully enjoy the abstract and concrete principles of the science of numbers; may fairly revel in difficult propositions, and may regard the hour for algebra, trigonometry or whatever else it may be as the most exhilarating hour of the day. Not infrequently two sisters may be entirely in contrast when the question concerns this abstruse and, on the whole, formidable study; one may love it as much as the other loathes it. You need not expect to receive much help from the people at home when you are puzzling over diagrams, examples and problems in mathematics. Most of us, after our school days, remember enough of what we learned there to enable us to foot up household accounts, and to see that we do not overrun our weekly or monthly income. But we do not retain much more.

If we are thoughtless persons, we are apt to regret that we were compelled to spend a lot of time over things we did not like when there were so many other things that would have given us a great deal of pleasure.

But, Dorothy, stop a moment before you condemn your teachers for insisting on making mathematics the test of your scholarship. In the first place, it is good for most of us to do what we don't very much want to do. We are better for being compelled to exercise some self-denial. You and I are bound to meet obstacles of one sort or another all along the road of life. If we are cowards, we shall shiver and shake and turn away and look for some little by-path by which we may avoid the issue. If, on the contrary, we are brave, we shall go boldly up to the thing in our path, and see whether it cannot be put aside. In order to get along creditably in this world, every one of us must have a good supply of moral courage and real force of character. These tasks of the schoolroom are chiefly valuable because in them there is hidden the element which turns the raw recruit into a soldier, the element called drill. You get an enormous amount of drill for your mind when you study mathematics. You may not find it agreeable, but that does not matter. The fruit will be reaped later on.

* * * * * *

You need not laugh at me, Dorothy, when I tell you that a girl who has been thoroughly trained and disciplined by struggles with mathematics, that for her mean conquest, will bear herself much more finely than one who has spent her time dawdling over lessons that never taxed her powers. For instance, it is a shame for a woman to scream when she sees a poor little mouse scuttling as fast as it can out of the closet, or to go into fits when a bat or a spider or some other uncanny creature crosses her field of vision. Women who do this are women who have never had any practical drill in self-control. You may not know it, but there is the greatest peril to women in not being able to keep a good grip of themselves.

I once met a lady approaching middle age, who boasted that she had never restrained an emotion in her life. "If anything goes wrong, I just go to pieces," she said, "and everybody has to fly around and wait on me." She seemed to think this a meritorius thing. In reality, it was disgraceful. The one duty beyond all others for you and me, Dorothy, is to be equal to the occasion whenever it comes, and to rule our own spirit. How are we ever going to rule anybody else if we do not rule ourselves?

* * * * * *

Having said this, let me add that I look upon mathematics very much as the builder looks on the foundation of the house. If you are planning to build a beautiful mansion, with many rooms and corridors, with a tower on the top and windows open wide to the sunshine, you must first of all dig deeply into the earth and see that your underpinning will be safe and your foundation stable.

The whole of education is built on the alphabet, the multiplication table and the Ten Commandments. On these you may rear whatever beautiful edifice you please. It would be a very one-sided development that a girl would have who knew nothing except mathematics. Once in awhile this has been shown in the case of some mathematical prodigy who has performed astonishing feats with figures and has done nothing else. At one end of the scale place mathematics for ballast; at the other give play to imagination and then you will have a perfectly balanced character. Do not make the mistake of thinking that there is no virtue outside the ledger. Every child who solves a difficult problem should be told a fairy story immediately afterward as a reward. Whatever else you omit, be sure you cultivate your mind in the region of poetry and fancy.

A traveler was wending his way over the mountains of Kentucky, when he came, at nightfall to a cabin in a lonely pass. He asked if he might find shelter for the night, and the hospitality of the mountains was at once extended to him. Food and a bed and asylum for man and beast are always freely given by the dwellers in those hillside homes. Lying at full length on the cabin floor and ciphering by the light of blazing pine knots was a boy who seemed absorbed in his occupation. On inquiry, it transpired that this lad of 14, who had had very little schooling, was working his own way through algebra, patiently tackling every difficulty as he met it, and thus far he had had almost no help. The traveler discovered that the boy had a genuine love for learning; the sort of love that pushes a student on whether he has teachers or not. He was able to give him some suggestions, and after awhile to put him in the way of going to college. That mountain boy became a distinguished professor in a great university, proving himself not only skilful in mathematics, but able to master other studies in many fields.

Dorothy, the real value of mathematics for you will be to convince you that whatever other girls have done, a girl like you may do. Also, it may help you to adopt the motto of the wisest of men, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might."

ATTRACTIVE WORK BAG.

This Shows Some Improvements on the Popular Design in the Shape of Little Side Pockets.

The little bag shown here, although of a well-known and popular design, presents modifications in the form of little side pockets, which are a decided improvement. The circular base measures ten inches in diameter, and must be constructed from stiff cardboard, and then covered on both sides with whatever material is selected. Anything with a smooth and dust-rejecting surface is to be recommended for this purpose, such as glace silk, sateen, or face cloth. The bag is formed from a strip of material 36 inches long and 18 inches wide, three inches of the width being turned in and hemmed to form a wide frill, outside which rings should be sewn at intervals in which to thread the ribbon slide. Six pockets should be next constructed of double thickness of material, turning them in at their upper edges and machine-stitching, and making a button hole in each. The pockets should measure about six inches wide and eight inches high, and should be neatly stitched to the bag before it is made up. The whole can then be sewn to the base at once. It would look pretty to have the pockets of velvet in a contrasting shade or a deeper tone of the same color. Of course, the initials also must be worked before making up, and should be done in silk or one of the pretty silky cottons, in embroidery or satin stitch.

GOOD FOR THE HAIR.

Be Careful to Change the Part and Quite Often Change the Manner of Arrangement.

If you want to have a luxuriant head of hair at 70, don't part it in the same place from the time you leave school; if you do, you will have a "fly-walk" that would accommodate black beetles. No woman in the world has such beautiful hair as the woman who keeps well in sight of the prevailing fashion. It means that she frequently changes her mode of dressing, and a change in dressing is as good for the hair as intelligent irregularity is for the human mechanism. Those harmless little words, "I always do," have been the stumbling block in many and many a human life.

"Why do you always double on a win; it so seldom comes off?" was asked a card player, who immediately replied, with a look of mingled pity and scorn: "Why, it is my system." It was a very bad system, but there was nothing more to be said.

So with your hair as with many of your habits, try swinging off once in awhile into new grooves, and don't cramp yourself by a foolish regularity. Remember the axiom: "Wise men change their minds," and it is to be hoped sometimes their habits.

Pretty Wedding Gift.

Antique brooches are popular with artistic folks as souvenirs to bring home from abroad. They are patterned after quaint old models. One beautiful brooch just sent to a local bride has a center piece of oval striped onyx of a brownish garnet tone, surrounded by alternate pearls and beads of onyx, similar in size and contour to the pearls. Each onyx bead has a tiny stripe of white across it. A graceful gold setting of substantial character, yet looking almost like filigree, completes this brooch, the onyx in which is so polished that it seems almost like a gem.

Linen Neckwear.

Butcher's linen is used for tie, cuff and belt sets with suitable embroidery. Collar and cuff sets may be made of sheer lawn trimmed with lace and lace braid and faggoting. Washable belts, made of material like the costume with which they are worn, are very popular.

Chapped Lips.

Six Doctors Failed.

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 25th. (Special).—After suffering from Kidney Disease for three years; after taking treatment from six different doctors without getting relief Mr. J. O. Laudeman, of this place, found not only relief, but a speedy and complete cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills. Speaking of his cure, Mr. Laudeman says:

"Yes, I suffered from Kidney Trouble for three years, and tried six doctors to no good. Then I took just two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and they not only cured my kidneys, but gave me better health in general. Of course I recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills to others, and I know a number now who are using them with good results."

Mr. Laudeman's case is not an exception. Thousands give similar experiences. For there never yet was a case of Kidney Trouble from Backache to Bright's disease that Dodd's Kidney Pills could not cure. They are the only remedy that ever cured Bright's Disease.

SALT RHEUM ON HANDS.

Suffered Agony and Had to Wear Bandages All the Time—Another Cure by Cuticura.

Another cure by Cuticura is told of by Mrs. Caroline Cable, of Waupaca, Wis., in the following grateful letter: "My husband suffered agony with salt rheum on his hands, and I had to keep them bandaged all the time. We tried everything we could get, but nothing helped him until he used Cuticura. One set of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills cured him entirely, and his hands have been as smooth as possible ever since. I do hope this letter will be the means of helping some other sufferer."

PAINFUL PERIODS

AMERICAN WOMEN FIND RELIEF

The Case of Miss Irene Crosby Is One of Thousands of Cures Made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

How many women realize that menstruation is the balance wheel of a woman's life, and while no woman is entirely free from periodical suffering, it is not the plan of nature that women should suffer so severely.

Thousands of American women, however, have found relief from all monthly suffering by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it is the most thorough female regulator known to medical science. It cures the condition which causes so much discomfort and robs menstruation of its terrors.

Miss Irene Crosby, of 313 Charlton Street East Savannah, Ga., writes:

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a true friend to woman. It has been of great benefit to me, curing me of irregular and painful menstruation when everything else had failed, and I gladly recommend it to other suffering women."

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular menstruation, backache, bloating (or flatulence), leucorrhœa, falling, inflammation or ulceration of the uterus, ovarian troubles, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, nervous prostration or the blues, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences, and be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for further free advice. Thousands have been cured by so doing.

October's somber days are here,
The leaves begin to turn,
The farmers sing a merry tune,
As they fill up their barns.
They all are wearing pleasant smiles,
Their crops are very fine,
They feel well paid for their hard work,
Through the good old summer time.
Potatoes peep from out the ground,
In B. J. Collins field,
Each one will weigh at least three pounds,
They are a goodly yield,
While Brother Johnson's buckweat crop,
Is something grand to see.
And David Logue's fine fields of corn,
Are nice as they can be.
So cheer up fellow citizens,
No need to weep or wail,
For while you stay in Huntley town,
You'll have full dinner pails.

His wife thought it meant some sore affliction to the family, but the little girl about four years old, says, "Papa I know what it means, the big fat one is the landlord down town, and the next is mamma and me and the baby and the last one is you." The total enrollment to the end of the first month last year was 697 including 70 in the kindergarten. Figures given above for last year are in all cases exclusive of the kindergarten. Absences caused by the enforcement of the vaccination law caused oua record for this first month to lag. We regret this because it was needless. Notice was given early in August, in plenty of time to have that disagreeable business attended to.

The persons named below have made a general average in attendance, scholarship and deportment of 95 or more.
